EXECUTIVE SUMMARY: C-COM is the largest of two 9-1-1 centers in Clackamas County. The other center, LOCOM, belongs to the City of Lake Oswego and is a division of the Lake Oswego Police Department. C-COM was created in 1976 and has always been a Clackamas County department. C-COM does not receive general fund dollars; operating funds come from the State 9-1-1 Tax, approximately 20 percent, and fees assessed to the public safety agencies we provide service for, approximately 80 percent, in the current budget year. Additionally, much of the specialized equipment for 9-1-1 operations such as 9-1-1 phone systems, public safety radio systems, and computer aided dispatch systems (CAD) are funded by various methods including the Oregon Emergency Management 9-1-1 Program, and through partnerships with other agencies both within and outside of the C-COM budget. The Charter document has a long history and updates have been made throughout the years as C-COM grew and needs changed. The most recent charter document was completed in 2021 and as we move into the future, updates are needed.

The charter outlines an agreement between the Board of County Commissioners, and the Member Board Agencies for C-COM operations. The document also spells out the methods for involvement of the Member Board in C-COM decision making in operations and fiscal matters. Additionally, the document outlines processes for adding new agencies as well as for current agencies in the event they want to leave C-COM. The items in this document are designed to protect the County as well as the Member Agencies that fund C-COM. The document is in redline form to provide transparency regarding the updates. C-COM leadership and the E-Board of the C-COM Member Board have worked on this document and agree on the updates shown in the document.

RECOMMENDATION: C-COM Staff as well as the C-COM Member Board respectfully recommends the Board approves the revised version of the C-COM Charter Document as written at the next appropriate Board Business Meeting.

Respectfully Submitted,

Tony Collins,
